Explanation of Local Expenditures: Conducting and Reporting Lethality Assessments: This bill specifies requirements when a law enforcement officer responds to a domestic violence situation, including completing a lethality assessment which is available for free on the internet. Officers must submit assessments to their agency, which must then submit them to local and state domestic violence fatality review boards. These requirements constitute a workload increase on local officers and agencies and is likely to extend the amount of time spent on scene for each domestic violence call. It may also lead to officers taking additional actions beyond administering the assessment. Depending on the workload and manning of each agency, this may increase the need for overtime, but most agencies will be able to meet the requirement within existing resources.
