The following information is revised to reflect amendments adopted by the committee on May 19, 2022

Fiscal Impact: Staff notes unknown, significant costs (hundreds of thousands to low million, General Fund). The bill clarifies the training program is to certify training programs for employees of victim-witness programs, sexual assault victim programs, and other community-based programs that offer services to victims of crime. The previous fiscal estimate remains applicable as the range reflects the possible approaches for CDPH to certify the programs. If the CDPH were to contract with the California Office of Emergency Services (CalOES), which offers grants to similar entities, costs could be lower. To the extent CDPH would need to contract with external subject matter experts to create criteria to certify programs, costs could be potentially higher.

In addition, the bill requires CDPH to certify the programs, which a state or local agency, nonprofit organization, or educational institution voluntarily chooses, CDPH would need to hire staff to develop and establish oversee and review applications. It is unknown whether there would be automation costs related to notifying providers of certification and tracking program certification expiration.

Author Amendments: The author's amendments:

- Clarify the types of programs eligible for certification; and,
- Clarify a state or local agency, nonprofit organization, or education institution that chooses to offer training must certify its training program with CDPH.
