DIGEST: This bill shortens timelines for approval or disapproval by a public agency acting as the “responsible agency” for housing development projects.

ANALYSIS:

Existing law:

- 1) Allows, pursuant to the California Constitution, cities and counties to “make and enforce within its limits, all local, police, sanitary and other ordinances and regulations not in conflict with general laws.”
- 2) Requires public agencies to act fairly and promptly on applications for development permits, including housing, under the Permit Streamlining Act (PSA), including that:
 - a) Responsible agencies must approve or disapprove qualifying projects within the longer of 180 days from the lead agency’s approval, or the date the responsible agency accepts the application as complete.
 - b) For housing development projects, 90 days from the lead agency’s approval, or the date the responsible agency accepts the application as complete.
- 3) Establishes the following state agencies:
 - a) The California Coastal Commission, which has specified authority over development within the Coastal Zone.
 - b) The San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission (SFBCDC), which has specified authority over development surrounding the San Francisco Bay.

This bill reduces the time period that a responsible agency is required to approve or disapprove a project, as described above, from 90 days to 45, except for the California Coastal Commission and SFBCDC.

Comments

Purpose of the bill. According to the author, “AB 1007 takes aim at one of the biggest bottlenecks in the process—permit approvals. This bill cuts the time frame for responsible agencies to act on housing permit applications from 90 days to just 45.

“At the heart of the permitting process is the ‘shot clock’—the countdown regulatory agencies must adhere to once an application is deemed complete. While prior legislation expedited the shot clock for lead agencies specifically for housing projects, but did not correspondingly shorten the clock for responsible agencies to act on a complete application and delays in the permit process. These holdups—especially for permits issued by state and regional agencies—have remained a stubborn obstacle to getting much-needed housing built.

“By aligning the shot clock across the board, AB 1007 aims to bring much-needed efficiency and predictability to the housing approval process, ensuring projects move forward faster and communities get the housing they desperately need.”

FISCAL EFFECT: Appropriation: No Fiscal Com.: Yes Local: Yes

According to the Senate Appropriations Committee:

- Any new costs for the Coastal Commission and the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission (BCDC) would be negligible. Staff notes that there could be other potential, but likely minor state costs to the extent that other state entities would meet the definition of a public agency acting as a responsible agency who would be responsible for acting on specified housing development applications. (various funds)
- Unknown local costs for cities and counties to comply with accelerated project approval deadlines. These costs are not state-reimbursable because local agencies have general authority to charge and adjust planning and permitting fees to cover their administrative expenses associated with new planning mandates, including expedited permitting requirements. (local funds)
