- 3) Provides that if the Commission on State Mandates determines that this act contains costs mandated by the state, reimbursement to local agencies and school districts for those costs shall be made pursuant to Part 7 of Division 4 of Title 2 of the Government Code.

Background

Purpose of this Bill. According to the author, “As a physician, I have seen the needs of those in shelters who are struggling to meet their basic health needs. Allowing service providers into evacuation shelters enables trusted partners to provide continuity of care and will likely enfold more of the vulnerable communities toward services. This is even more important underserved areas, who are already stretched thin with services for older adults and people with disabilities.”

California's Aging Population. California is home to a growing aging population. According to the Older Americans Act 2021-2025 State Plan on Aging, by 2030, 25% of the state's population, an estimated 10.8 million people, will be 60 or older. This will be the first time older adults will outnumber those 18 and under. The state is making efforts to meet the needs of this growing population. In January 2021, the Newsom Administration published its Master Plan for Aging, which is intended to be a ten year blueprint for state government, local government, the private sector, and philanthropy to prepare the state for the coming demographic changes and "continue California's leadership in aging, disability, and equity." The Master Plan for Aging outlines five goals, twenty-three strategies, and over 100 initiatives. The five goals of the Master Plan are: housing for all ages and stages; health reimaged; inclusion and equity, not isolation; caregiving that works; and affording aging.

Area Agencies on Aging (AAA) and Independent Living Centers (ILC). CDA administers programs serving older adults through contracts with local AAAs. These agencies provide a wide array of services on a community level to adults age 60 and over. AAA programs often include long-term care ombudsman services, nutrition services, caregiver support and respite, Medicare counseling, legal referrals, transportation, and case management. There are 33 AAAs across the state and each county is required to have an AAA, so some agencies serve multiple counties.

ILCs are disability-led organizations that support people of all ages and all types of disabilities. Their core services include information and referral, peer support, independent living skills training, individual and systems advocacy, and transition services. ILCs are not residential facilities; they are community-based hubs for resources and connection.

Aging and Disability Resource Connections (ADRC). ADRCs are collaborations between AAAs and ILCs. Christina Mills, executive director of the California Association of Area Agencies on Aging (C4A) writes, "we partner as ADRCs, which makes it easier for individuals to get the right help regardless of where they start—a No Wrong Door approach. There are cultural differences between the two communities [...] but the truth is: disabled people are aging, and older adults are often aging into disability." Together, AAAs and ILCs coordinate a variety of supportive services to seniors and people with disabilities. Anyone, regardless of age, income, or disability, may receive ADRC services. However, not all AAAs nor all ILCs provide ADRC services. ADRC services may include enhanced information and referral services, options counseling, short-term service coordination, and transition services.

Mass Care and Shelter. The State Emergency Plan guides state agencies, local jurisdictions, and the public on emergency management. The plan describes the methods for conducting emergency operations, rendering mutual aid, emergency response capabilities of state agencies, resource mobilization, public information, and continuity of government during an emergency or disaster. The 2009 State Emergency Plan established the California Emergency Support Functions, which include 18 primary activities essential to addressing the emergency management needs of communities in all phases of emergency management.

One Emergency Support Function is mass care and shelter. Stakeholders participating in this function provide coordination, collaboration, and resource identification for mass care and shelter activities. County welfare departments are the lead for local mass care and shelter activities, which includes feeding, basic first aid, bulk distribution of needed personal services items, and providing short-term emergency shelter or housing for persons displaced from their residence because of a disaster incident, among other activities.

State Auditor Report. In December 2019, the California State Auditor released a report that found that three audited counties—Butte, Sonoma, and Ventura—had not adequately followed key practices for emergency planning, including having emergency plans for alerting, evacuating, and sheltering residents and assessing the needs of their communities in advance of disaster events.

The report described the following services that individuals with access and functional needs may require in natural disaster situations: equipment in emergency shelters, such as wheelchairs, accessible cots, walkers, and accessible showers; interpreters or documentation in Braille; and medical supplies, such as oxygen. Additionally, according to the bill sponsor, shelters do not always have incontinence supplies or appropriate storage for medication, and may not be prepared to accept individuals with service animals.

Every county must have an access and functional needs representative to support older adults and people with disabilities. However, according to the bill sponsor, the county representative may not have expertise and may be pulled in multiple directions during a large scale disaster.

Related/Prior Legislation

AB 1068 (Bains) would require the Secretary of CalHHS, in coordination with various state departments and long-term care stakeholders, to develop a working group to make recommendations regarding the evacuation and sheltering needs of older adults and persons with disabilities living in long-term care facilities during emergencies. AB 1068 was held in the Senate Appropriations Committee.

SB 582 (Stern) would establish licensing policies during federal or state declared emergencies or disasters for facilities licensed by CDSS, the State Department of Public Health, and the State Department of Health Care Services. SB 582 is pending on the Assembly Floor.

SB 435 (Wahab), as heard by this Committee, would have required an RCFE licensed for 16 or more residents to have an alternative source of power to protect resident health and safety for no fewer than 72 hours during any type of power outage. The bill would have additionally required an RCFE to follow emergency and disaster preparedness measures, as specified, depending on the chosen type of alternative power source. SB 435 was amended out of this Committee's jurisdiction.

SB 352 (Reyes) would require, in specified circumstances, that AAAs and ILCs be prioritized for state assistance when a state of emergency is proclaimed. The bill would require ADRC programs to provide disaster and emergency preparedness training specifically designed to help older adults and people with disabilities prepare for emergencies and ensure their safety before, during, and after natural disasters and other emergency events. SB 352 is pending on the Assembly Floor.

Comments

The recent fires in Los Angeles highlighted the need to improve disaster and emergency response and evacuation plans for the elderly and for those with disabilities. According to the author, during LA wildfire response AAAs and ILCs were not allowed inside shelters to meet with clients, in part to maintain the privacy of other individuals at shelters. This bill seeks to address this issue by allowing counties, AAAs, ILCs, and ADRC programs to coordinate to ensure continuous services and supports for clients without causing disruptions to others' privacy at shelters.
