DIGEST: This resolution recognizes the month of May 2026 as California Tomato Month.

ANALYSIS: This resolution makes the following legislative findings:

- 1) Tomatoes are one of the most widely produced and consumed agricultural commodities in the United States and are a critical component of the domestic food supply.
- 2) California is the national leader in tomato production, producing approximately 95% of the nation's processing tomatoes and accounting for roughly one-third of global processing tomato production, making the state central to both national and international food systems.
- 3) California's processing tomato industry annually produces more than 10 million tons of tomatoes, generating billions of dollars in economic activity and supporting thousands of jobs across farming, food processing, transportation, and related sectors.
- 4) California's tomato industry reflects long-standing investments in agricultural research, sustainability practices, and water-efficient production methods that continue to strengthen the state's agricultural economy.
